THE EARLY-MORNING SUN reflects through the big dish antenna of Comsat's Earth Station near Jamesburg in this dramatic photograph by George T.C. Smith. The time was early Sunday morning, and the giant aluminum saucer was performing a task of universal magnitude as it relayed voice and television communications from astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin on the moon. For a story and more pictures on the Earth Station's role in the current Apollo 15 mission, see pages 8 and 9.

TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

Your account of the Odello hearing before the planning commission is outstanding in its complete coverage in which you caught all the essential features of this drama.

More than two months ago I wrote one of the planning commissioners as follows: "If, as I hope will happen, OLAF is successful in acquiring this land for public use, the county should not hand these land promoters a windfall in the form of increased land value due to rezoning. I do not believe the people of this community (or county) owe real estate bonanzas to anyone."

Commissioner Evans stated at the hearing that the Odellos are entitled to rezoning values inherent in the land, which the county assessor has placed at a market value of $1,352,000. No one disputed the fact that the Odello land is no longer suited for agriculture, but there may be a serious question as to rezoning for high density in a flood plain area, etc. Certainly, regardless of what Commissioner Marcucci said at the hearing, the high density approved by the planning commission did raise the market value of the land. The Odello price as compared with the market value placed by the county assessor is now placed at $4,800,000. Would this figure be this high if the planning commission had placed a lower figure on this property?

Now, I am not so naive as to think what happened at the July 28 hearing doesn't happen elsewhere and with the same result, but I also know it doesn't always happen nor do I believe there is any inherent right that is denied when it doesn't happen.

Doubtless all participants in the hearing were sincere but there is something in this situation that has caused people with greater minds than mine to question the justice of such a situation. There is one theory which is to the effect that unearned increase in land value or other real estate due to community development near or surrounding such property, something not earned by the owner, should accrue to the benefit of the community. It is even claimed that such form of tax would do away with property tax as we now know it.

It is at least worth a thought. In this case it would be the difference between the assessed market value of $1,352,000 and the $4,800,000 asked by the Odellos. Interesting isn't it? So as not to provoke any undue emotion, let me hasten to say that I am well aware of the constitutional provision that no one can be deprived of his property without due process of law, but how about an excess profit tax on real estate?

JUNE PAYNE (left) and Barbara J. Brown, both of Carmel, prepare final sketches of a portion of the original Presidio of Monterey. The two sisters are members of the Monterey County Archaeology Society. June is the new club's secretary, and Barbara is treasurer. Club president Don Howard has been conducting the excavation since he discovered the site last February. Last week the pits were filled in and the field, located across the street from San Carlos School in Monterey, was scraped to begin preparation of the school's football field. The Archaeology Society is analysing data and artifacts and preparing to publish its findings. (Photo by Bill Brooks.)

Public hearing next week on changes in local highway system

Proposed revisions to the California State Highway System will be the subject of a public hearing next Thursday, August 12 in Salinas.

Among other proposed additions and deletions to proposed highways in Monterey County, opinions will be heard on highway construction proposed for Route 68 from Asilomar to Highway 1.

"This is an opportunity for citizens to state their views on proposed highways," said Martin Nicholson, a route studies engineer for the California Division of Highways.

While the proposed Hatton Canyon freeway is not listed as one of the routes to be discussed for addition or deletion, Nicholson said it would "undoubtedly" come up for discussion.

According to a classified advertisement published elsewhere in this issue, the "primary purpose of this meeting will be to discuss with local officials and other interested people in the area, possible changes in the State Highway System based on the use and purpose of all highways. You are invited to discuss this concept as well as additional factors which you feel would be appropriate."

The advertisement says further that the transcript of the hearing will be held open for 15 days for submission of additional written statements, which should be mailed to: Mr. E.F. Gregory, California Division of Highways, District 5, P.O. Box L, San Luis Obispo, Calif. 93401.

Next week's hearing, which will take place in the Salinas Council Chamber, 200 Lincoln Ave., is scheduled to start at 10 a.m.

Bernard Schulte, Carmel Valley pioneer, dies at 81

Bernard Henry Schulte died at the age of 81 Monday after a protracted illness.

A native of Santa Clara, Mr. Schulte was a pioneer in the early development of Carmel Valley. He came here with his father, Henry, in 1910 to establish pear orchards which he maintained until 1946. Schulte Road is named after the family.

He founded, and served for 20 years as manager, the Carmel Valley Fruit Growers Association, which shipped fall and winter pears through Blue Anchor. He also served on the board of Blue Anchor in Sacramento.

He played an active role in local, county and state Farm Bureaus and was a member of the Federal Land Bank Association of Salinas for 29 years. He and his wife, Viola Lee, helped provide leadership to 4-H clubs for 12 years.

Mr. Schulte served as president of the Monterey

Union High School board of trustees for nine years. He was chairman of civil defense for Carmel Valley during World War II and was a member of the county war production board.

The Schultes moved to Santa Rita Street and Pico Avenue, Carmel, in 1946 and lived there ever since.

He was a deacon and elder of the Carmel Presbyterian Church, past master of Carmel Lodge 680 F&AM, past patron of Monterey Chapter 239 of the Order of Eastern Star and past watchman of the Shepherds of the Golden Rule Shrine, White Shrine of Jerusalem.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter, Virginia McClurg of Salinas; a son, Bernard of Berkeley; five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Private family services were held Tuesday in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, Pacific Grove, with Dr. M.L. Kemper officiating. Private

School board asked to eliminate Frykman's job

The Carmel school board adopted a final budget of $4,227,478 for the coming school year Monday night after a verbal skirmish with persons protesting the allocation of any funds to community counselor John Frykman.

The final budget figure, the same as in the publication budget, includes a six percent cost of living increase for all school employees while holding the tax rate at its present $2.72 level.

Carvel Baldwin of Carmel, an officer of the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association, touched off a testy exchange with board members when he charged that Frykman received $19,000 from the school district last year and asked that his position be abolished.

Frykman's basic job is to counsel students with existing or potential drug problems and their families, to provide in-service training on drugs for teachers and to work with community groups in establishing effective drug programs.

Baldwin argued that since the board has created the special position a year ago, it could also eliminate it. As a substitute, he suggested that Young Life be encouraged to operate at Carmel High School.

Superintendent of Schools Harris Taylor sharply disagreed with Baldwin's assessment, saying that Frykman received a salary of $13,000 last year. The additional $6,000, Taylor said, represented approved transportation expenses and a pro rata share of utilities and other services and supplies used by Frykman's office.

PAID BY GRANT

Taylor said that in the coming school year, the costs will be paid by a $19,578 federal grant from the Safe Streets Act, channeled through the California Council on Criminal Justice. This grant will include full payment of Frykman's salary, a half-time secretary and all but an estimated $2000 of miscellaneous expenses, including mileage and attendance at conferences.

"The point that we would save $19,000 (by eliminating the job) is not accurate," Taylor declared.

Retorted Baldwin: "I don't think the public knew this before."

Trustee James Miller said he felt that establishing the position of community counselor "was one of the best things we have ever done," and favored Frykman's re-employment.

"You're still talking about $19,000 of the taxpayers' money," Robert Oross of Carmel Valley commented. "So I'm asking all three board members (Richard Wilsdon and Mrs. Pamela Smith were absent) if they will be responsible for what the community counselor says and does?"

NOT ISSUE NOW

"This is not an issue at this time," replied board president James Brock.

After further discussion about procedures to follow to discuss personnel matters, Baldwin said he will write a letter requesting an executive session with the board to pursue the subject further.

"That will be fine," Brock said.

At that point Oross raised another budget-related question—the additional cost of transporting sixth graders from upper Carmel Valley to Middle School instead of Tularcitos School.

Board members said last year's shift of sixth graders from Tularcitos to Middle School was made on educational grounds in order to have a unified policy for the entire school district.

"This has nothing to do with the budget," Brock insisted. The board agreed to discuss the educational considerations involved at a future meeting.

TWO NEW TEACHERS

In other action, the board hired Mrs. Ann Petersen of Laguna Beach as a second grade teacher at Tularcitos School and Mrs. Martha Schimbor of Palo Alto as a French and Spanish teacher at Carmel Middle School.

Mrs. Petersen is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and California State College at Hayward. She comes from East Irvine, where she has taught in a nongraded primary, fourth grade and kindergarten.

Mrs. Schimbor is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and received her MA from Stanford. She has a major in both French and Spanish, and formerly taught at Wilbur Junior High School in Palo Alto.

The board also approved bus schedules for the coming school year. The schedules and times are essentially the same as last year, except that Tularcitos School will start 15 minutes earlier for each shift, with class times starting at 8:30, 9:30 and 10:30 a.m.

inurnment was held at El Carmelo Cemetery Columbarium. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of funeral arrangements.

Contributions are preferred to the J. Clifford Lee Cancer Fund of the OES, 988 Via Verde, Del Rey Oaks, or the Community Hospital Cancer Fund, Box HH, Carmel.

CONSTRUCTION IS UNDERWAY on Carmel Lago, a subdivision of 92 condominium units on Rio Road at the end of Carmel Rancho Blvd. This tentative subdivision map, a revised version of the preliminary map, will be presented to the County Planning Commission for approval next Wednesday at 11 a.m. According to subdivider Harry Bell, the first phase, totaling 48 units, should be completed in five months. The buildings are all two-story, with stucco and redwood exteriors and shake roofs. The development will cover 12.93 acres, with a density of 7.2 units per acre. This represents a reduction from the originally planned density of 10 units per acre.

DR. A DEAN CAMPBELL (left) is shown receiving his regular commission in the U.S. Navy as a lieutenant commander, Dental Corps. Making the presentation is Lieutenant Commander Flanigan, Commanding Officer, Naval Reserve Training Center, Monterey. Dr. Campbell, who practiced dentistry in Carmel Valley, will be reporting this month for active duty at the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey. His father-in-law, Professor David Hoisington, is on the electrical engineering faculty at the Postgraduate School. Dr. Campbell, married to the former Helen Hoisington, will continue to live in Carmel Valley. (Official U.S. Navy Photo).

$10,000 loss in fire

Wednesday on Paso Cresta

Faulty wiring connected to a hi-fi system touched off a major fire Wednesday morning at the home of Craig Betencourt and Larry Kueny at 25 Paso Cresta.

The smoldering wires ignited a bed and storage area and eventually the blaze spread to the roof. Damage was estimated at $7,000 to the house and $3,000 to the contents.

At 12:30 p.m., the Carmel Valley Fire Department sped to a grass fire reported on the Archie Fleming property near the top of Laureles Grade. Both the State Division of Forestry and the Salinas Rural Fire Department also sent trucks to the fire, which was held to an area of half an acre.

The fire department's ambulance was called out three times last week. Saturday at 12:32 p.m., Jenny Clark of 17 La Rancheria was taken to Community Hospital as a medical emergency. At 12:47 a.m. Sunday, Terrence Graham of 116 W. Carmel Valley Road was also taken to the hospital by ambulance. Thursday morning the ambulance took Florence Wheeler to Community Hospital from her home at 24 Southbank Road.

Our favorite developer-of-the-week

If anyone is passing out Developer-of-the-Week awards, one should go to Dick Bonds in Orlando, Fla. Bonds is president of a company developing 1100 acres north of Orlando, Fla.

This week architects for the project discovered an eagle's nest in a wooded area in which 100 homes were planned. The nest had two full-sized adults and one fledgling.

Bonds decided on the spot that the eagles have first claim to the land.

"I saw them from a distance," he was quoted as saying. "It was late in the afternoon. The sun was setting and they were wheeling around a lake. They were beautiful, just beautiful."

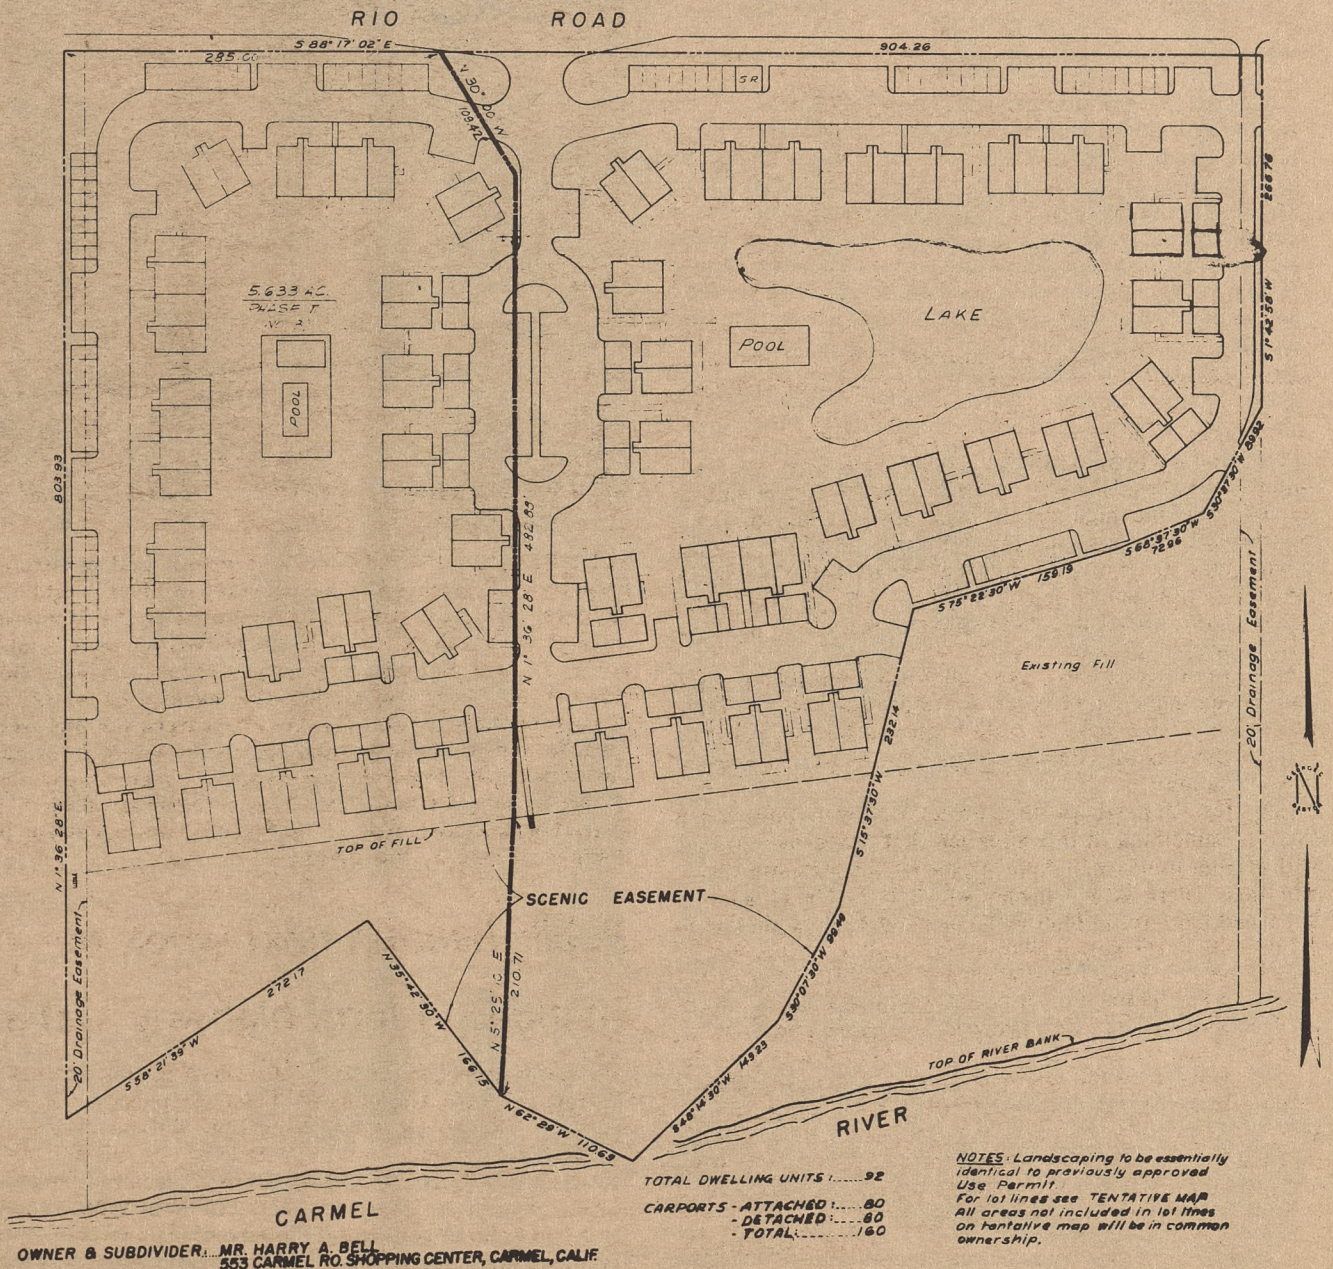

The local Audubon Society told Bonds that the eagles would need a radius of 660 feet of wild land around their nest if they are to remain. So Bonds has set aside 32 acres of choice woodland for a sanctuary.

Bonds is aware that eagles mate for life, and have a life span of 25 to 35 years. They migrate north in the summer, but always return to the same nest if it is not disturbed.

If the site had been developed as planned, it would have been worth $620,000. Bonds is not adding 100 houses to the rest of the development.

"We'll just have that many fewer houses," he said.

Charles Lunt to manage Carmel office of Palo Alto-Salinas Savings & Loan

Two management changes at Palo Alto-Salinas Savings were announced today by Firmin A. Gryp, president of the association.

John J. Wuerthner, vice president and manager of the Carmel branch, will assume those duties at the newest PS branch operation in the Montclair district of Oakland opening in about four weeks.

Named vice president and manager of the Carmel office is Charles Lunt, jr., presently with Independent Savings in Salinas, and formerly with First Federal Savings of Carmel.

Wuerthner, who joined Carmel Savings in 1969, had previously served as managing officer for Systematic Savings in Daly City before their merger with another association.

Lunt has been a Monterey County resident for over 25 years, and presently resides in Carmel Valley with his wife, Melanie, and daughter, Tami. He was honored last year by the Monterey Peninsula Jaycees who named him their Outstanding Man of the Year. He is a past president of the organization and is currently a Junior Chamber International Senator. He also currently serves as the president of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce, race chairman and director of the Executive Committee for SCRAMP, director on the Monterey County Mental Health Board and is a member of Carmel Rotary.

Lunt has also been active with the American Savings and Loan Institute having served as president of the Monterey Bay chapter and currently serving as a director.

Both Wuerthner and Lunt will assume their new duties on or about September first.

THE TOWN CRIER

That roadwork in progress by the Mid-Carmel Valley Shopping Center is not the start of a four-lane freeway. Not yet, anyway.

What is going on is a previously announced plan to provide left-turn lanes onto Berwick and Dorris drives on either side of the shopping center, and improve and pave the shoulders on both sides of Carmel Valley Road.

At the same time, drainage problems by the Begonia Gardens are being eliminated with the installation of new storm drains.

The project should be completed within a month.

The attempt to establish a Monterey Peninsula Park and Open Space District moved forward this week when attorney Sean Flavin presented petitions with 7,100 signatures to County Clerk Ernest Maggini.

A team of volunteers had gone over the more than 8,000 names gathered on the recent petition drive, and checked signatures by precinct lists. Next the County Elections Department will review the names, and if at least 5,000 valid signatures remain, the petitions will be turned over to the Board of Supervisors.

Sponsors of the measure hope to have it approved for a special election to be held before the end of the year.

GREEN . . . the summer color of lush pastures . . . contrasted with clover white for the decor - place mats, napkins, tallies, candies and desserts - at the benefit bridge and canasta party sponsored by St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church. The Scarlett Road home of Mrs. Nelson Miles Leoni was the site of the party where Mary Young and Kathryn Walker served as co-hostesses. Miniature terra cotta pots containing Italian Parsley plants set in green plastic glasses served as center pieces and were presented as table prizes. The list of winners included: Letha Regis, Dorothy McIntyre, Millie Krejcir, Mike Cecka, Mary Lou Root, Gertrude Sanford, Dori Ford, Sandy Cisneros, Eunice Tucker, Gene Fairchild, Carlisle Mothersill, and Sara Oppenheimer. First place in canasta was won by Dorothy McIntyre - second by Mike Cecka. Bridge winners were high, Dori Ford and 2nd, Eunice Tucker. New players welcomed by the group included Boyd Huff's mother who is visiting from Spokane, Wash., Mrs. A.E. Nicholson, and Millie Krejcir. Ladies had a sneak preview of 1971 Christmas cards - a project headed by Kathryn Walker which annually benefits the church - and many have already placed their holiday order. No home has been volunteered for the August 25 party and unless hostesses volunteer soon, the August party will be cancelled. Watch the Outlook for a reservation announcement.

There is no denying that per square foot, Carmel Valley has attracted the greatest number in the world of talented, creative notables from every field. Ladies were in the limelight last week when the 1971 Seventh edition of "Who's Who of American Women" came off the presses listing four of the Valley's favorite ladies. Linda Clark (Mrs. Francis Foster Bradshaw) Author-Nutritionist; Beulah Karney (Mrs. William Powers, Virginia Stanton (Mrs. Robert Stanton) an appointee to the California Art Commission; and Jeanette Rankin, First Congresswoman of the United States.

The John Scroggs have returned from London where they visited their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Finch - who then joined them on a month's tour of the British Isles. The West Carmel Valley Road residents were accompanied by their son, Tom, who will be a senior this year at Carmel High School. It was a reunion after two years with their daughter and son-in-law who lived for a year in Amsterdam and have been in England a year where Mr. Finch, an architect-designer is with the Greater London Council. They enjoyed tennis at Wimbledon where they thrilled to the match with Gorman defeating Rod Labor - toured a private school - and enjoyed several new plays at London theaters. During their ten days in London, Tom met the 41 Young Life members from Monterey who are touring with Shep and Bob Broyles. With them he saw Canterbury Tales. Friends from long ago welcomed them as weekend guests at their home in Wales - and in Scotland they shot thirty six holes of golf on the famed St. Andrews course and enjoyed repertory theater at its best by a summer stock group at a little Scottish resort.

TAKE A BOW VALLEY RESIDENTS . . . It is your response to the request for Betty Crocker - General Mills coupons which has given Carmelo 4-H Club members a total to date of 16,322 coupons toward the $80,000 necessary for the kidney machine for Monterey County. When members of the Electricity Project learned that the Gonzales Young Homemakers were attempting to purchase a SIS hemodialysis machine needed by fifteen county residents who must now drive three times weekly to San Francisco, they offered to form receiving stations in Carmel Valley. The three pharmacies: Bowers, Moore's and Steinmetz allowed them to place containers at the three stores and Betty Shields welcomed one at the Village Library. The boys collect these:

call personally at homes where they are invited and received a tremendous assist from Mrs. Jon Storm's Brownie Scouts and St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church. The redemption coupons are then counted into lots of 100, bagged and turned into the Gonzales organization who now report that the half way mark has been passed. The deadline has been extended until December 31 so the boys ask that you continue to save for this worthwhile project. Shown with their "score board" on 4-H Exhibit Day are (l-r) Rogue Hattan, Kent Swanson, Garth Hattan, Shane Hattan, Wes Farr, Ron Gayman, and Jeff Mink. Not pictured from the group led by Lloyd Swanson and Bill Farr were Bobby Ingram, Jay Jones, and Steve Draper.

The Friedenthal's long haired Daschund and George Shearing's guide dog, Lee (who even shared concert billing with his famous master) cavorted pool side while guests swam and enjoyed a warm Valley Sunday. Elizabeth's cousin for many years was George's manager in New York. Carmel Valley holds a special place in the artist's heart and he has expressed a desire to live in our area "because it smells so good" when his days commuting to musical engagements with the George Shearing Quintette are over.

Making their home at Princes Camp on the Cachagua are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Oscar Wirkkala whose afternoon wedding took place at the Carmel Valley Community Chapel. The Rev. Don Johnson performed the 1:00 p.m. ceremony. Seed pearls trimmed the bodice of the bridal gown which was floor length with a chapel train of white organza and lace over satin. Her illusion veil was held with a crown of pearl petals. Her bouquet was of white carnations and yellow sweetheart roses. Barbara Baker of Fairfield served as maid of honor. The best man was Tim Wirkkala, brother of the groom who resides in Albany. The wedding reception took place at the Carmel Valley Inn.

The bride, originally from St. Petersburg, Florida, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Vandervan of that city. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Wirkkala of Albany, California, are parents of the bridegroom who is employed by A.T. and T. associated with the Earth Satellite Station at Jamesburg.

Cachagua's "Big Dish" relays Apollo 15 telecast to

BY PAT GRIFFITH

The shortest distance between the moon and Mission Control in Houston leads through . . . Cachagua Valley ????

The answer, for several hours a day, is yes.

Last weekend, while millions of Americans were marveling over the unbelievably clear television coverage of astronauts David Scott and James Irwin bounding across the moon, the mammoth "big dish" atop the Communication Satellite Corporation's Earth Station in Jamesburg provided a key link-up in the unfolding drama.

During the early morning coverage, up until a little after 9 a.m. PDT, the sound and pictures were beamed from the moon to an earth station in Moree, Australia. From Moree the signals were transmitted to an Intelsat (International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium) satellite in orbit 22,300 miles above the Gilbert Islands.

Then the 97-foot wide antenna jutting above the bronze hills of Cachagua Valley scooped up the relay from the satellite -- mere space whispers, only a fraction of a watt in power.

Amplified a million-fold, the signals were funneled by the antenna into supersensitive receiver-amplifiers in an equipment room behind the dish reflector, again boosted in power and processed through the control building.

The signals left the building on the communications network of AT&T, relayed via Oakland to Mission Control in Houston.

There the pictures were scanned and sent on to the television network pool in New York, which THEN sent them out around the country for broadcast by local television stations.

And how long does it take to get all this from the moon to Australia to a communications satellite to Jamesburg to Oakland to Houston to New York to a television set in Carmel Valley?

TWO SECONDS

Just about two seconds.

A portion of the moon telecasts were also bounced back across the Pacific to waiting viewers in Japan and Korea and points further west, adding another two seconds to the trip from the moon.

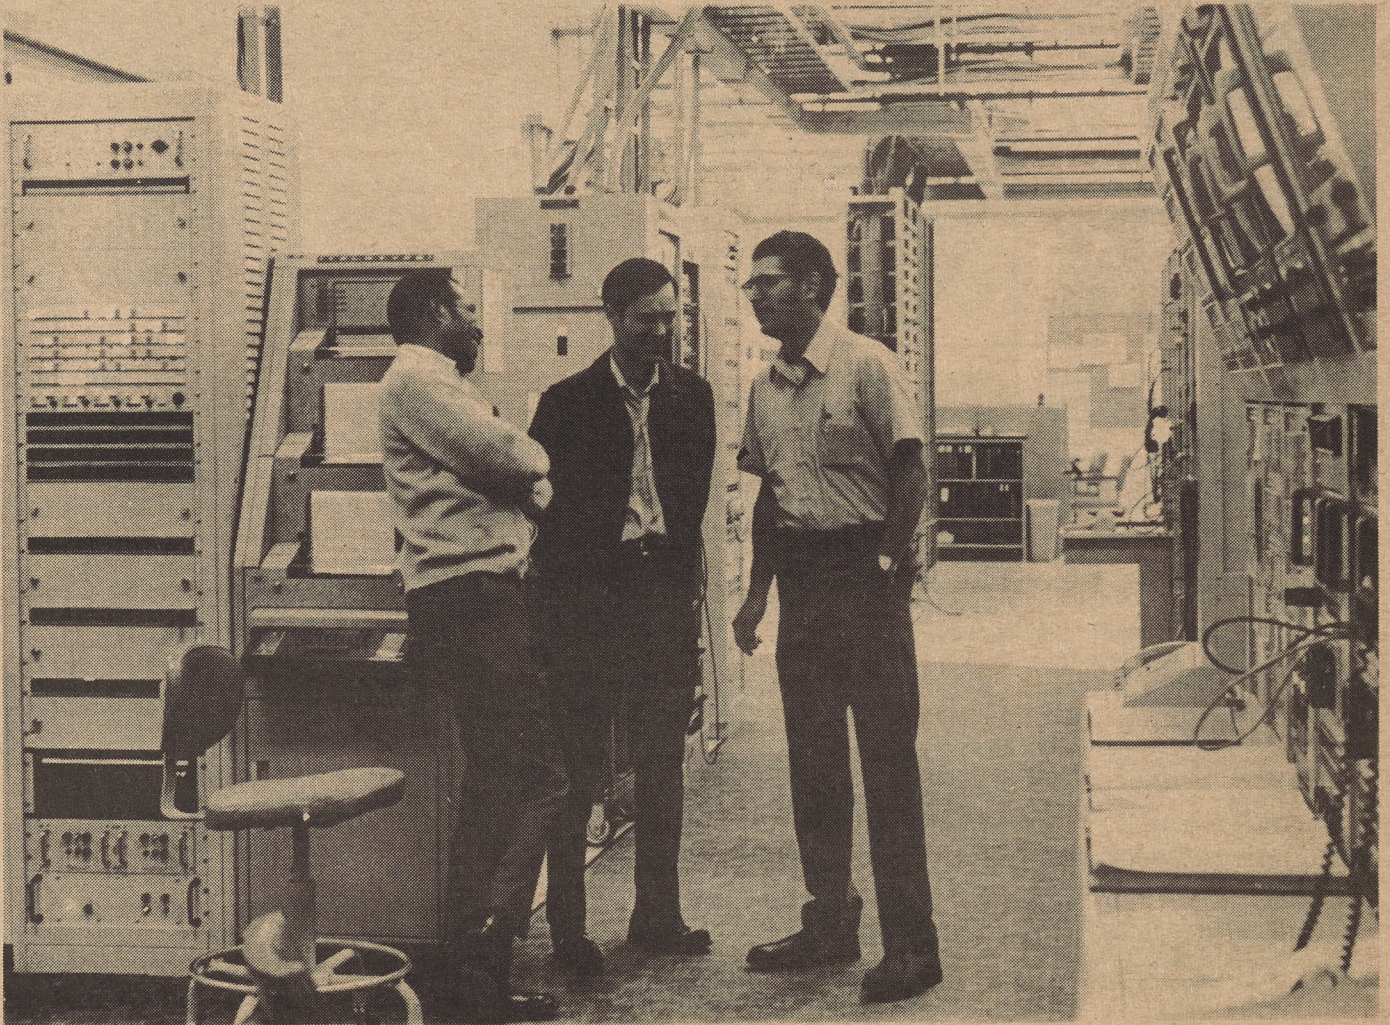

This mind-boggling performance is a routine chore for the skilled teams which man the Comsat station.

Since the station went into operation in December, 1968, crews of two or three men, working on rotating eight-hour shifts, constantly monitor a steady flow of telephone, television, teletypewriter or other general communications.

The mammoth 470-ton antenna can transmit and receive signals in varying frequencies at the same time. A beacon signal constantly beamed by the Intelsat satellite keeps the big dish automatically locked on the satellite at all times.

On Apollo flights, the Jamesburg station is involved only during the hours when astronauts on the moon are on a direct line with an earth station served by the Pacific Ocean satellite.

As the earth rotates, this Pacific route is lost, and com-

A FEW MOMENTS OF RELAXATION come as the midnight to 8 a.m. shift turns over duties to the morning crew. Stan munications are relayed from earth stations farther around the globe and beamed through relay satellites above the Atlantic Ocean to the United States.

The Jamesburg station was a relay point for Neil Armstrong's historic first step on the moon, and it will be in action again during the coverage of Apollo 15's splashdown north of Hawaii on Saturday.

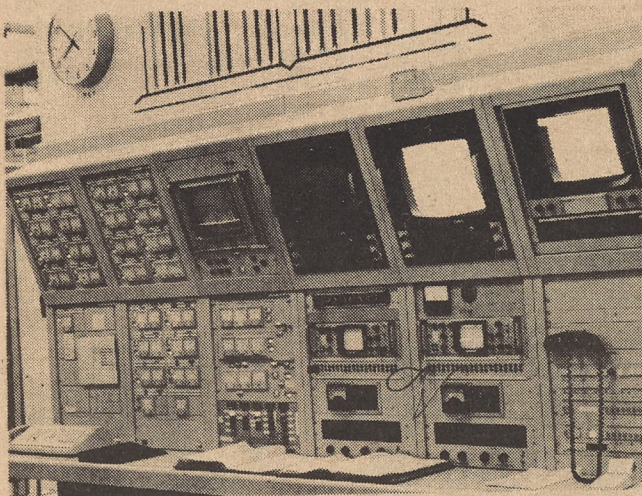

As part of the preparation for Saturday's coverage, Comsat teams have been running a series of tests with a small TV transmitter on board the carrier USS Okinawa.

The station is under the direction of John Scroggs, a veteran of 27 years with the Signal Corps who retired as a

Scroggs, like many of the Comsat technicians, makes his home in Carmel Valley. Others living here include Jim Clark, who is serving as president of the Carmel Valley Little League; Mel Stauffer, manager of the Wolfpack farm team; Larry Cisneros, a Wolfpack coach and Volunteer fireman; Mike Downey, Bob French, Don Tucker, Bill Scott, Stan Nubin, George Ford and Bill Hartke.

The Comsat station is open for visitors on Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. Visitors are shown a short film Comsat's world-wide communications system and can watch operations at the central supervisory station.

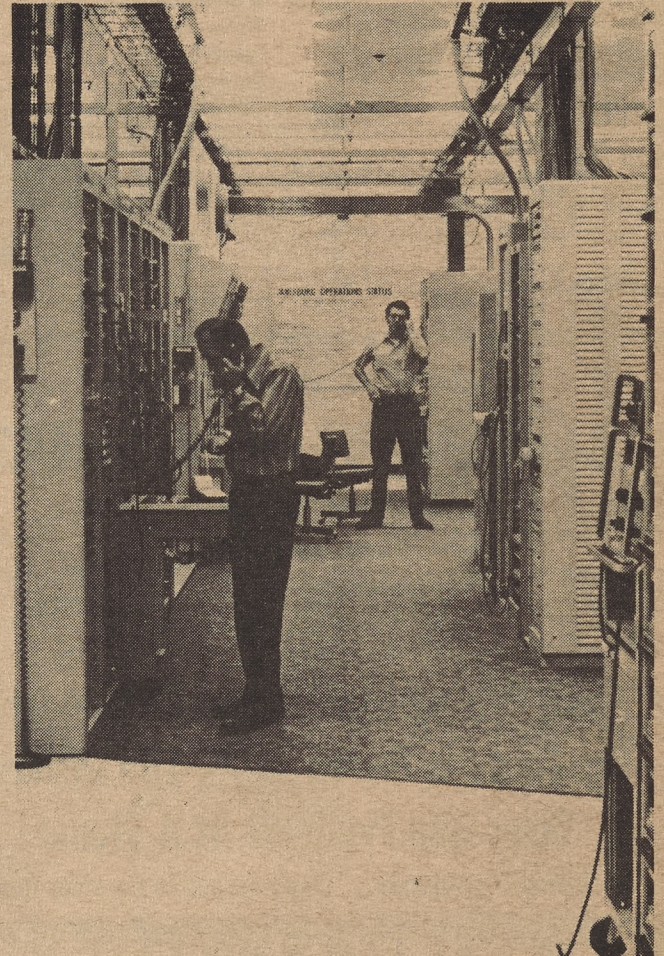

THE CENTRAL CONTROL UNIT at the Comsat Earth Station in Cachagua Valley is hooked up to virtually instantaneous communications system around the world. The spectograph, third panel from the left, is monitoring circuits with all stations linked to Jamesburg through the Intelsat satellite. When this picture was taken, the two television monitors on the right were sending test patterns while astronauts David Scott and James Irwin were driving Rover across the moon. When the astronauts stopped and resumed direct television transmissions, the center TV screen monitored the color incoming and the one at the right monitored the black and white picture. The television screen at the left, not in use at this time, monitors television being transmitted from the station back across the Pacific, via satellite. When in use during the Apollo broadcasts, the picture on the outgoing relay is approximately four seconds behind what is seen on the center screen, a space age "instant replay".

Photos by George T.C. Smith

LARRY CISNEROS, a popular man around Carmel Valley Village, is an operations supervisor at Comsat. He was in charge of a three-man team receiving and relaying early-morning Apollo 15 broadcasts last weekend. A former Marine, he came here from the Comsat Earth Station at Brewster Flats, Wash.

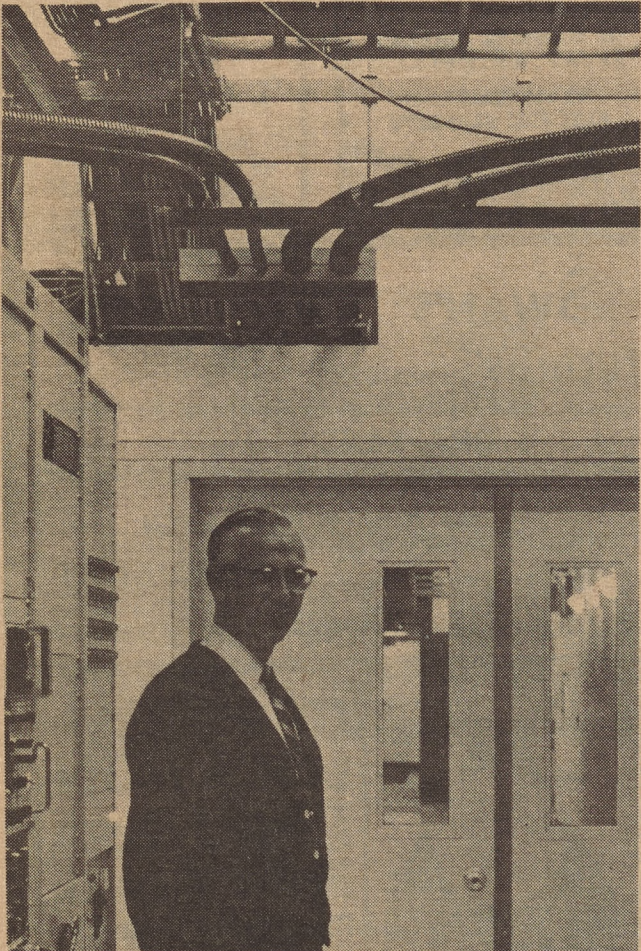

WHILE TRANSMISSION from the moon is underway, George Ford, foreground, and Joe Speck check out different parts of the communications process.

COMSAT MANAGER John Scroggs pauses below four cables that appear innocuous enough to the innocent observer. In fact, however, all communications received or transmitted by the Jamesburg station pass through these four elliptical wave guides made of corrugated copper. The two larger pipes at right receive signals from the satellite in the four gigacycle range (four billion cycles per second). Signals are transmitted from the station through the two smaller pipes at six gigacycles.

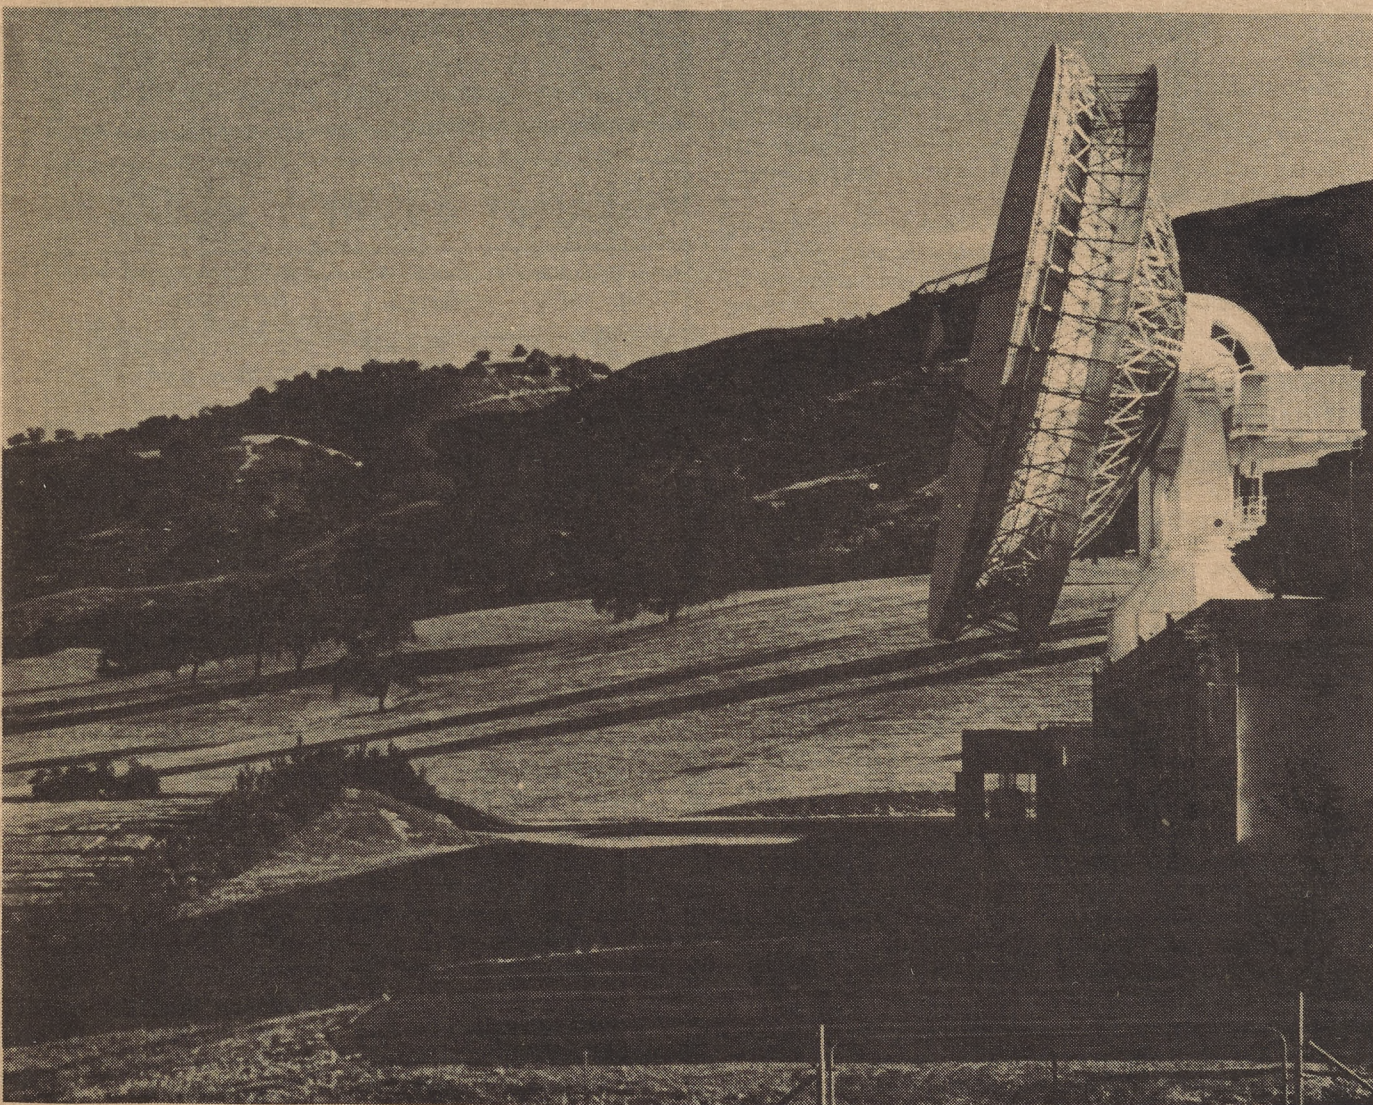

THAT'S ASTRONAUT David Scott as he looked on incoming TV from the moon. As the image passed through a series of transmission processes en route to the main TV network pool in New York, minor spots and distortions were eliminated, all in fractions of a second.

A TECHNICIAN in Moree, Australia, called with a question about the Apollo 15 relay, so operations supervisor Mel Stauffer, right, checks his monitoring board while Joe Speak watches. The satellite telephone hook-up with Australia is as clear (clearer?) than conversations between Carmel Valley and Monterey.

THIS IS THE MAIN FRAME, a deceptively simple name for the point at which four wire circuits from Comsat are cross-connected to circuits operated by AT&T. AT&T has a separate operation at the Comsat building, relaying communications Comsat receives via satellite to circuits throughout the United States, as well as handling the reverse process of linking U.S. circuits to Comsat for overseas distribution.

TALLER THAN a 10-story building, the giant dish antenna stands out against the oaks and rolling hills of Cachagua Valley. Made entirely of aluminum, the reflector was designed to critical specifications of within 50 thousandths of an inch. The antenna and receiver were initially tested and calibrated by listening to the known radio emissions of the star Cassiopeia A, many light years away. The receiver-amplifiers, located in the equipment room behind the reflector, are cooled by liquid helium to temperatures approaching absolute zero to minimize molecular noise that might interfere with the quality of the faint incoming signals, which are only a fraction of a watt in power.

Free ads for students looking for summer jobs

Starting with their next issues, the Carmel Pine Cone and the Carmel Valley Outlook will run classified ads free of charge for students living in this area who are looking for temporary summer jobs.

These ads will appear under a special heading, "Summer Jobs Wanted", and will run in both papers.

The ads will be limited to 15 words, including the name and phone number of the student.

To place an ad for summer employment, call the Pine Cone at 624-3881 or the Outlook at 624-0133.

This special classified column for students will appear for four weeks, through the issue of Spet. 2.

Petpourri
BY JUDITH EISNER

We are constantly amazed by the number of people we meet who admit to owning pet dogs and cats that won't permit their owners to do the simplest things for them.

Have you ever heard a dog owner admonish a guest not to go near the dog because he had a bone or a toy or a piece of food? Or perhaps you've been warned not to touch a certain dog's foot or back or tail lest he bite you. We find it astounding that people are willing to adjust to their pet's "peculiarities" rather than training the pet out of them.

There are dogs and cats who can't be combed or brushed, who refuse to let their mouths be touched, who bite when their feet are handled and who turn positively vicious over their dinner dishes. There are animals who snarl and snap when "annoyed", and others who throw themselves about in semi-hysterical behavior.

The time to circumvent these outbursts is, of course, in early puppy or kittenhood. To be successful in convincing an animal that he must permit certain liberties, you must be convinced that the animal lives in your house, and not the other way around. You are the boss, and your attitude must clearly show that you're not going to put up with any nonsense.

Every dog and cat should permit his owner and members of the immediate family to take things away from him at will. Dogs in particular tend to be possessive about food, toys and bones. While we feel that dogs are entitled to certain "rights," and should not be pushed around for no good reason, there are many times when an owner is perfectly justified in taking things from his dog.

Many grown dogs and most puppies will pick up and attempt to eat all kinds of strange objects, ranging from rotten food and chicken bones to buttons, stones, pieces of glass and nails. When you find your dog eating something that can be dangerous to him, you must take the object away. It is absurd to have to stand by and watch the dog swallowing great gulps of splintery bones without being able to do anything about it.

The time to start accustoming your pet to your handling is as soon as you get him. The very first time you offer a dog or cat a dish of food it should be quietly removed from him after he has begun eating.

He will probably act disturbed when you remove the dish, but you should reassure him in a soft voice, tell him he's a good boy, and give him back the food.

You can carry this simple "training" further by giving a dog or cat a bone (or a hard biscuit) and then opening his mouth and removing it. Cats especially don't like to have their mouths opened and may try to scratch or bite, but if you are on guard for misbehavior, a slight tap on the nose or other correction should discourage it.

It is important to be able to open a pet's mouth at will in order to be able to check and clean its teeth, remove foreign objects and administer medication. You should routinely inspect a dog or cat's mouth, even if you have no reason to, just to accustom him to having this done.

(Apropos of this, a lady recently told us that her dog attacked and severely bit her husband the first time it was necessary to give him medication. They had had the dog for more than two years, but had never before opened its mouth.)

Some animals become enraged when their feet are handled. Here, again, you should accustom your pet from the time you get it to permit you to touch its paws. Regular nail care, for both dogs and cats, will do much to overcome this reluctance on their part.

If you make a game of touching the feet, as in shaking hands or just stroking the paws, you can gradually gentle the animal out of its objections. Since there are many times that the feet require attention -- for cuts, thorns, nail-trimming and the like -- it is important that you can handle them at will.

Animals frequently become testy about being touched on a part of their body where they have been injured. Apparently, memory of past pain prompts them to be defensive about being touched. You can overcome this type of behavior by patience and gentle handling, convincing the animal that you aren't going to hurt it.

Dogs and cats should stand still and permit their owners to comb and brush them, and if they have been groomed regularly from babyhood, they usually enjoy the process. One of the reasons animals resent being groomed is that their owner inadvertently pulls the hair or is too rough with a brush. Dogs and cats have delicate hides -- a fact which surpasses some people -- and they appreciate gentleness. Yanking a comb through a matted coat hurts the dog as much as it would hurt if your hair were matted; and many wire-toothed dog brushes are capable of raking the skin painfully. So have a little awareness of the dog's comfort and go gently, especially on tender ears.

The most important thing to remember in dealing with a dog or cat is not to let him get away with bad behavior. You don't have to be grim about it, but you must convey your determination to the animal. If a pet acts out at being handled, the worst thing you can do is admit defeat and give up. That's encouraging him to tyrannize you and the next time you try to touch him, he'll bully you even more.

A good dog should not threaten to bite its owner; he should not growl or snap. Such temper should be punished with stern words and a stinging slap, which is usually enough to discourage it. If your pet really gets into a huff about something, you can muzzle a dog or encase a cat in a pillow case or laundry bag to prevent it from scratching you. A second person to help hold paws or jaws is also a help. The important thing is to get the job done when you want it done. If you give in to the animal, he has won a battle and you have lost.

JIM BELT PAINTINGS AT THE TANTAMOUNT

The paintings of Jim Belt, Santa Barbara artist, are to be seen in a one-man show in the Green Room Gallery at the Tantamount Theatre for the month of August.

Jim Belt's subject matter is a rural view of the western scene with historical buildings, abandoned ranch houses, and ranch country landscapes painted with carefully studied detail.

The gallery is open week-day afternoons from 2 to 5, and Friday and Saturday show nights from 7.

ALCOHOLISM TALKS START TONIGHT

"Mind, Body and Alcohol" is the title of the first lecture in a series of five on alcohol as legal drug to be presented by Monterey Peninsula College Thursday evenings beginning tonight at 8 p.m. in Room H-201.

Mary C. Ross, executive director of the Monterey Peninsula Council on Alcoholism is the instructor with guest lecturers and panelists discussing the physiology of alcohol, alcoholism, methods of treatment, help for the family, action on the drinking driver, and ways of prevention.

The course is open to the public without charge. No advance registration is necessary.

Now at Circle Theatre:

Noel Coward's 'Hay Fever' designed 'strictly for howls'

Noel Coward's satirical comedy, "Hay Fever," now playing at Carmel's Circle Theatre Wednesday through Sunday evenings, has been hailed by reviewers as "Noel Coward at his Noel Cowardest—the epitome of the Coward style of biting wit, outrageous characters, uproarious situations and brilliant dialogue."

Circle Theatre Director Michael Keller warns local playgoers: "Don't look for a message, or even much meaning in the madness which transpires during this play...it is designed strictly for howls, in the stylishly urbane Coward manner. It is a great bowl of whipped cream with a cherry on top."

If it is true that "Hay Fever" is something of a comedy classic, why then is it so infrequently performed? The author himself suggested the reason: "Of all the plays I have written, 'Hay Fever' is by far the most difficult to perform."

Keller concurs in this judgment: "It is one of the most demanding plays for actors that I can think of. The non-stop, machine-gun pacing and the stylized technique required to perform this play makes it a challenge to even the most experienced and highly trained professional actor."

The Bliss family focuses on Judith, a frequently-retired Broadway star who is planning yet another triumphant return to the stage. Judith is played by Gloria Barron, whose performance as Violet, a somewhat "shady lady" in the musical "Wonderful Town," netted her Circle Theatre's 1970 "Oscar" as best supporting actress in a comedy role. Mrs. Barron was seen recently as Maria in "Man of La Mancha." Her professional background includes stage, TV and radio work in Los Angeles and in the east.

Judith's husband, David Bliss, is a successful writer—and the role is played by Mrs. Barron's husband, Bob, who has written scripts for the "Bonanza" television series since 1962. He has also written screenplays for three motion pictures, as well as many other television series. In addition to writing, Barron has directed and

The action of the play gets underway when each of the Bliss family invites a weekend guest.

The Bliss's maid, Clara—played by Circle Theatre veteran Mrs. Florence Larsen—is outraged by this invasion, feeling it to be "an impertinence and an imposition."

The unfortunate guests include another real-life husband and wife team, Dr. Richard Conklin (as the Diplomat) and Mrs. Barbara Conklin (as flapper Jackie Coryton). Barbara was seen as Fermina in "Man of La Mancha," and Dr. Conklin was a lead musician of that production, playing guitar and percussion.

June Ballinger is seen as Myra Arundel, the Society Vamp. Miss Ballinger is a professional actress who has performed in repertory theatres on both the east and west coasts.

Frank Pucillo, who portrays Sandy Tyrell, the Prize Fighter, will be making his second appearance on the Circle Stage, having been seen as the muleteer Anselmo in "Man of La Mancha."

Circle Theatre, the Community Theatre of the Monterey Peninsula, is located on Casanova between Eighth and Ninth. "Hay Fever" will be performed Wednesday through Saturday nights at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday nights at 7:30 p.m.

The Bliss' son, Simon, is portrayed by Terrence Wadsworth, a drama major at MPC with a background in professional acting, radio announcing and folk singing. He was a member of the New Christy Minstrels singing group before coming to Carmel. At the Circle Theatre, he has been seen as Butterworth in "Dracula," and as the head muleteer, Pedro, in "Man of La Mancha."

Daughter Sorel Bliss is played by Edie Donahoe, who is a career actress with numerous community theatre and repertory productions to her credit. Edie finds her role as Sorel particularly challenging, as Sorel is the only member of the family who feels she is at odds with her environment.

'Charlie Brown' opens at Forest Theatre Saturday

"You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" brings the Peanuts comic strip characters to Carmel's outdoor Forest Theater this Saturday at 2:30 p.m. for an engagement of six successive Saturday matinees through Sept. 11.

The musical comedy which ran four years in New York and three in San Francisco is a series of episodes in an average day in the life of Charlie Brown and Snoopy. Among its 14 scenes are "The Red Baron," "Supper Time" and "The Baseball Game."

Charlie Brown is played by Mark Thompson, fresh from an appearance in "How To Succeed" at the Studio Theatre, while Snoopy is Tony Hernandez who has just closed in "Fiddler On The Roof" in Salinas.

The other characters are Evelyn Hughes as Lucy, Carrie Shook as Peppermint Patty, Gary T. Boehm as Schroeder and David Drakos as Linus. All four are currently in "Hello, Dolly!" at the Studio where "Charlie Brown" will move on Sept. 17.

Described as musical entertainment for the entire family, "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" will appeal to all who enjoy the comic strip. Tickets are available at the gate or in advance at Sunset Center, Gadsby's and the Studio for $2 for those under 16 and $3 for others.

'Hello, Dolly!' brightens summer theatrical scene

Carmel's reputation for providing the Peninsula area's finest theatrical entertainment is very amply restated with the advent of "Hello, Dolly!" at the Studio Theatre last weekend.

This remarkable Broadway musical, which has already become an American classic, happily arrives in Carmel in mid-summer, and provides a most delightful evening.

The Studio Theatre's policy of combining experienced talent with bright young newcomers again makes a pleasurable blend, and Director Bill Asp's version of this rousing, light-hearted musical comedy reaches most appreciative audiences.

His Dolly is Donna Garland, who makes her debut here, and she brings a crystalline pure voice to the role of one of the stage's more notable "matchmakers." She is a much softer version of the character which Carol Channing made so notable, but she is a pro every moment on stage.

Bill Asp stepped into the other leading role, that of Horace Vandergelder, when Ray Coffey could not appear (Bill Schofield takes over the part after August 18). Needless to say, Asp's portrayal of the wife-seeking but self-serving Horace stood ten feet tall. And Asp can make any tune a memorable song, as he does with "Hello, Dolly!" "It Takes a Woman," and others.

One of the more notable performances was also turned in by Bobby Warren Booth, who brought an overflowing warmth to the role of Cornelius Hackl, who as Horace's indentured chief clerk escapes for a single day to the bright lights of New York City and for the first time finds life—and love.

Love in the person of Mrs. Irene Molloy, who is supposed to marry Horace, but through Dolly's manipulations (plus a playful plot) falls into the hands of the adventure-seeking Cornelius. Jeannie M. Hughes, surely one of the most sparkling personalities now appearing on the local stage, makes a most engaging and attractive Irene Molloy. Such talent in a supporting role can only be described as sheer extravagance.

Others in the cast make very fine contributions to this memorable musical. They include Randall Wise as Barnaby Tucker, Evelyn Hughes as Minnie Fay, Samuel Solis as Ambrose Kemper, Christiana Bramlet as Ernestina Money and Carrie Shook as Ermenegarde.

The chorus—Ginnie Baker, Susan Domke, Eleanor Morrice, Monica O'Reilly, Richard Andante, Gary Boehm, Richard Boynton and David Drakos—are all attractive and talented youngsters who appeared to enjoy every note they sang, and they sang a lot.

Gregory Granoff was superb as accompanist and the staging was so well done that even a few minor disasters Sunday evening were almost made to seem part of the rollicking action.

"Hello, Dolly!" should entertain a great many people during its run at the Studio thru mid-September, Wednesdays thru Sundays.

School alarmed over C.V. Road traffic

Carmel school officials, already concerned about the flow of high-speed traffic past Middle School, voiced alarm this week that the 45-unit development planned for Val Verde Drive will turn a dangerous situation into a critical one.

School board members were told Monday night that droves of Middle School students regularly bicycle along Carmel Valley Road against two lanes of fast east-bound traffic.

Although this is indeed dangerous, Superintendent of Schools Harris Taylor conceded, it is probably safer for them than attempting to get across the divided highway, bicycle west and then confront a difficult left-hand turn into the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center.

"And this Val Verde development is going to make the safety factor twice as bad," Taylor added.

Taylor said the school district has met with considerable lack of success in appealing to the County Road Department and the California Highway Patrol for help.

SPEED LIMIT WAS 35 MPH

Dan Yurkovich, assistant to the superintendent, recalled that several years ago the speed limit in front of Middle School was 35 miles per hour. School officials thought that was too high, and asked the CHP to study the area and make a recommendation.

The end result was that the speed limit was raised to 45 mph. Shocked school officials were told that this was in line with CHP policy that the legal speed limit should be the speed at which two out of three cars actually drive.

"They reason that if you set the speed limit too low, then even the careful driver will be turned into a law-breaker," Yurkovich explained.

Taylor said the school district has asked for blinking lights in front of Middle School and Carmelo School and has been turned down several times.

If the Board of Supervisors approves the Val Verde development without any road restrictions, Taylor said, Middle School may well be faced with the prospect of motorists turning into the school driveway to make a U-turn so they will then have a clear shot at a left-hand turn into the west-bound lanes of Carmel Valley Road.

"We'll have to see what happens," he said.

PARENTS ALARMED

Middle School principal Orville Rogers said parents at the school have been alarmed for some time by the increasing danger to students. Rogers said that most children living in Rancho Rio Vista or Carmel Knolls on the north side of Carmel Valley Road are driven to school by their parents so that they won't have to dart through heavy traffic.

Rogers noted that several roads on the Middle School property have been improved, but that so far there is no paved bicycle route extending from the school grounds to Carmel Rancho Blvd.

A spokesman for the County Road Department in Salinas said his department can't do anything about bicycle paths unless they are part of the right-of-way. He added that the County has been increasingly concerned because many bicycle and equestrian paths in Carmel and Carmel Valley have been blocked off by private development "and we have no funds to unblock any of these routes. Until enough people get together and ask for specific action on this, nothing will be done."

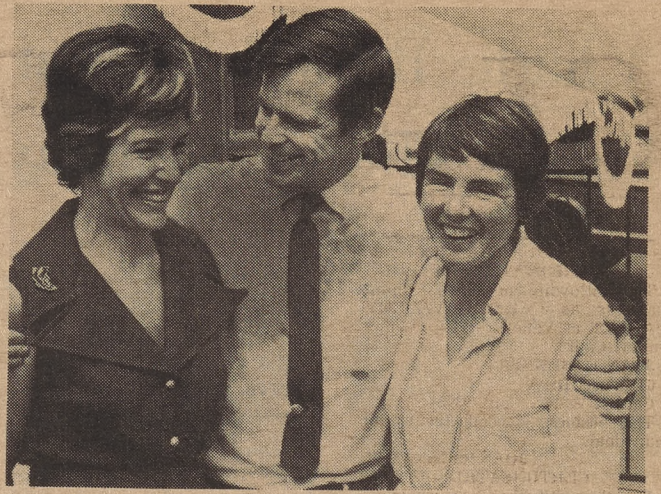

All Western horse show to be staged here on Sunday

An all western show will be sponsored by the Carmel Valley Horsemen's Assn. next Sunday.

It will be the 23rd annual roundup and will be held starting at 8 a.m. at the Carmel Valley Trail & Saddle Club grounds.

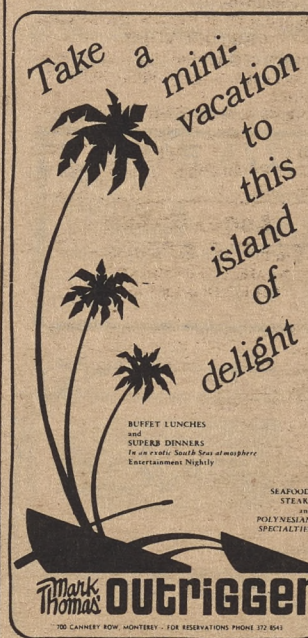

There are 22 events on the program. Trophies will be awarded to first place winners, and rosettes for other places to fifth. A silver trophy goes to the high point contestant.

Judge will be Tom Sandgroth of San Juan Bautista.

DIANE LeTOWT, Jody LeTowt, and Barbara Rainer discuss the plans for the champagne and hors d'oeuvres party to be held August 11 preceding the Monterey Peninsula premiere showing of "The Wild Child." Mr. and Mrs. LeTowt are the owners of Le Bistro in Carmel where the party will be held. This film benefit and party are being sponsored by OLAF as a fund-raising function (photo by Barry Kercheval.)

USING HIS NAVY DRESS SWORD, Jeffrey Allan Dennis-Strathmeyer, and his bride, the former Mary Louise Bordon, cut the first piece of wedding cake at their reception in the Officers Club at Mare Island Navy Yard.

Newlyweds to reside at Davis

An engagement announced last Christmas Day culminated in the July marriage of Jeffrey Allen Dennis-Strathmeyer of Carmel Valley and Mary Louise Bordon, member of a long-time Vallejo family. The couple exchanged marriage vows there during a nuptial Mass in St. Catherine of Siena Catholic Church before the Rev. William McLaughlin.

Mary Louise was escorted down the aisle by her father. She appeared in a classic gown of white organza and Chantilly lace with an Empire waist, cameo neckline and short sleeves, appliqued with lace and tiny daisy motifs.

Miss Ellen Mary Mintz of Houston, Texas, a college classmate of the bride, served as maid of honor, and Mrs. Richard H. Meyer of Santa Monica, also a college classmate, and Kevan Ann Strathmeyer of Carmel Valley, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. The Misses Stephanie Lavezzo of Benicia, and Kathy Lavezzo of Vallejo, the bride's cousins, served as junior bridesmaid and flower girl, respectively.

Gordon von Richter of Carmel, a fraternity brother of the benedict, and James V. Bordon, the bride's brother, seated the guests, and Albert S. Tammany III of Palo Alto, another fraternity brother, stood as best man.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Bordon of Vallejo, the bride is a 1969 graduate of Dominican College in San Rafael and received her elementary teaching credential from the University of California at Davis. She will be teaching in Sacramento this fall.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Charles Strathmeyer of Carmel Valley and Lowell F. Dennis of Escanaba, Michigan and Gore Bay, Ontario, is a 1963 graduate of Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach and is a 1967 graduate of Stanford University where he was a member of Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity.

A lieutenant in the Naval Reserve, he has completed his three years of active duty, including a tour in South Vietnam, and is currently attending law school at the University of California at Davis where the couple is now residing.

Prior to the wedding the Charles Strathmeyers were hosts for the rehearsal dinner which was held at Silverado Golf and Country Club at Napa, where they enjoyed a nice vacation by taking a condominium during the festivities before and after the wedding.
